Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney poison in the blood is liable to attack the vital organs, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Then the richness of the blood—the albumen—leaks out and the sufferer has Bright's Disease, the worst form of kidney trouble. Kidney trouble can be detected although it be slow and deceptive. First, by analysis of the urine; second, by the simple test of setting the urine aside in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, when a cloudy or brick dust settling indicates it.

It was for just such troubles that in His infinite power and goodness the Great Physician caused Swamp Root to grow for the benefit of suffering mankind, leaving it for His servant, Dr. Kilmer, the great kidney and bladder specialist to discover it and make it known to the world. Its wonderful efficacy in promptly curing the most distressing cases is truly marvelous. You may have a sample bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root the great kidneyl, liver, and bladder remedy, by mail free.

Rations For Cows.

It does not seem profitable to give good milking cows of average size and ordinary breeding more than seven to nine pounds of grain or mixed meal per day each, even when they are giving their maximum flow of milk for the season. Every farmer must compose the rations for his cows out of the materials which he has available, but as a sample ration the following may be useful for guidance: The bulky fodder part of the ration may be mixed in the following proportions. If the roots can be pulped and the hay and straw passed through a cutting box so much the better: 50 pounds of ensilage, 15 pounds of mangels, carrots or beets, 5 pounds hay, 5 pounds of straw. As much of that as each cow will eat up clean may be fed twice a day, and with it should be fed from three to nine pounds of meal or ground grain, according to the capacity of the cow, which a good feeder will soon be able to estimate. A feed of uncut hay or straw may be given in the middle of the day. When a cow in fair condition of flesh has passed the flush of her milking period, the allowance of grain may be gradually reduced, until a cow which has been milking for eight months or more will be receiving not more than three pounds of meal per day in addition to the bulky fodder part of the ration. Meal may be obtained from the grinding of peas, oats, barley or wheat, when that grain is sufficiently cheap. Carrots, mangels and sugar beets are more suitable roots for the feeding of milking cows than turnips. Turnips are admirably adapted for the feeding of growing, fattening or dry stock. All cattle seem to be improved in health and vigor by some allowance of roots per day in addition to the succulent feed in the form of ensilage.—Report of Commissioner of Agriculture, Canada.

MOUNTAIN ROSE.

Cold and rough the north wind blows,
Black in the morning early.
Who should I meet but Mountain Rose
Among the stubble barley?

All the world is under snows.
Blowing 'tis and snowing.
Who should I meet but Mountain Rose
The way that I was going?

Not a leaf on the poplar tree,
Not a flower on the heather.
Mountain Rose looked shyly at me
As we stepped out together.

Mountain Rose, so airy and free,
Where are roses blowing?
Rose's cheek, half turned from me,
The rose of love was showing.

Black and cold the north wind blows.
Never a bird is singing.
There's a lilt in the voice of Rose
Sweet as the skylark ringing.

Winter's black on heather and broom,
Where shall I find honey?
Rose's mouth is the honeycomb
And Rose's laugh is bonny.

Black and cold the north wind blows,
Winter comes in fairly.
I keep summer with Mountain Rose
Among the stubble barley.

THE VOLUNTEER.

The mother would not be pacified. "Not you," she said; "not you. 'The only son of his mother, and she was a widow'—remember that. War is not for you."

"The country calls," argued the young man. "Must I consider myself at such a time?"

The girl who was to be his wife spoke up.

"Yourself!" she said. "Is it only yourself?"

"You, too," he answered. "I fight for those I love when I fight for my country."

"What do you know of the hell and horror of war?" demanded his mother. "War made your father an invalid for life. Is not that enough for me to give my country? There are others who should go—rich men's sons bred in luxury, who should meet hardship for once in their lives—but you, with your meager pay, which barely provides for us!"

"My work is more than that," he frowned.

"Yes," she said, "you should make it more; there will be your wife to provide for."

"If you love me"— began the girl, when she broke down, burying her face in her hands.

"If you would only understand," he pleaded. "You know how it is—our countrymen murdered, the flag insulted, men going to the front. Must I stay here grinding out a daily existence in work that gives me mere food and shelter while those brave fellows stake their lives for me?"

"And what will become of you," cried his mother, "if you should return after the fighting is over? The position you have is mean, but it is something. Will it be held for you till the war is ended? I have seen war, and I know what comes afterward—struggle, poverty, inability to earn daily bread."

"I love you," said the girl, "but how can you tell that I may not forget you for some one else, when you can so easily leave me?"

"If I thought," returned he, "that you could be false to me"—

"Not that," she interrupted. "But a woman gives trust for trust; she cannot wholly obliterate herself when she finds that she is held unworthy. For am I not held unworthy when you can leave me against my wishes?"

His mother caught up the word. "A worthy son does not forget his mother in her hour of need. You are all I have."

He looked about him. He saw the peace at home, the sun shining in at the window, the peace outside of field and brook and wood; he heard the distant low of cattle, the peaceful song of mated birds. "Then," he sighed, "you would rather I should be a coward?"

"The brave man," said the girl, drying her eyes, "is he who stands behind the woman who loves him." She smiled up at him. "Stay with us. You are no less a soldier in being our commander." She placed her arms about him, drawing him to her.

His mother came and stood beside him. "Stay with us," she echoed.

"Listen!"

It was a new voice that spoke. The words came from a small, cramped form crouching beside the stove in the corner. It was the old grandmother. More than fourscore years had bowed her head. They had not thought that she understood. Her blind eyes were filmy. There was a smile upon her shriveled lips and one shaking hand was raised above her head.

"Listen!"

From afar off came a sound that was other than that of lowing kine and song of birds.

"Drum — drum — der-um, drum, drum!"

The young man straightened.

The old grandmother rose to her feet. She swayed a little and caught at the wall. She groped about the room to a tall chest of drawers. From it she took a long, narrow package.

"My son," she said, with feeble voice, "was shot in war and died from the effects of his wounds years after. It was an honorable death. While he was fighting I picked lint. I tore up all my linen to make it; then I went to the front and nursed the wounded. My husband was a midshipmate in 1812. A cutlass severed the sinews of his arm. I was a girl when I met him, and his helpless arm made me love him. Listen!"

"Drum — drum — der-um, drum, drum!" The sound was a little nearer.

"My grandfather," quavered the old grandmother, "was at Valley Forge. He was made prisoner. It was winter. His mother went to see him, carrying a basket of food. The journey was many miles. Sometimes a farmer let her ride a way in his cart. The rest of the way she walked through the snow. When time," said Mrs. Stuart. "Wouldn't it, Bessie?"

The girl's face was in her hands. A muttered word came from between the fingers.

"Then the end of the month," said Mrs. Stuart, "and now you'd better say good night. The girl's a bit overcome with the heat. Good night, Ben. Come again tomorrow."

Ben strode beyond her.

'Will you marry me, Bessie?" he asked sharply. "Let's hear you say it."

Mrs. Stuart smiled triumphantly in the darkness.

"Yes," faltered Bessie, with a roaming look.

And he snatched her in his arms and kissed her.

In the morning Ben was at work among his cabbages and peas, and the remembrance of that kiss was on him as he worked.

That evening there was a glorious dusk with a south wind. Ben, sawing wood, paused with the crosscut saw half through a piece of timber and drew his horny hand across his forehead.

He was so far away that he quite started to hear a light footfall close beside him. He looked around, and there dawned an astounded expression and then a rapturous glow on his face.

"Bessie!" he exclaimed. "Bessie!"

He put out his arms. What more perfectly natural than that she should slip into them?

But she only smiled and shook her head.

"I've come to have a bit of a talk to you, Ben," she said, and a new consciousness of her power over this big, hulking fellow armed her with a strength which was only born for the occasion and which would have brought a smile to her stepmother's face.

"I don't quite know how to begin," she said, "but—but I don't believe you care extra much for me yet, do you, Ben? Not astonishingly much?"

"Don't I, though!" he burst out. "Look here, Boss, would you believe it, I've thought of you every moment of this blessed day. My word!"

She set her mouth. "Then if you care for me that much I can ask you to do something for me."

"Any mortal thing, my girl."

"You could give me up, couldn't you? Couldn't you? Couldn't you? Oh, Ben, I'm that miserable till you give me up and go and tell my mother that your don't want me! But, oh, Ben, don't let her know I told you! There's lots of other girls, and you don't want me, do you? Say you don't. Just say, 'I don't want you, Bessie.'"

He said it after her mechanically, watching her hands twitching nervously at his shirt sleeve.

"I don't want you, Bessie," he said, "and, by heavens, I won't have you if it's agen your will!"

She stooped her head and her warm lips pressed a grateful kiss on his earth soiled wrist.

He told her mother about it, his eyes roaming restlessly about the parlor of Bessie's home.

On Sunday Bessie went to church and wore her big lace hat and sat beside her mother.

Ben was on the opposite side of the aisle and farther down the church, but he could have looked at her if he had wished. He never once turned his head and Bessie watched him, even at prayers.

When the service was over, he stood up, head and shoulders above every one, and it appeared to Bessie his eyes were certainly on the door.

He raised his hat and passed on, holding his head high—an unconscious diplomatist. Presently she saw him striding down the road as though it all belonged to him as well as the home on its side.

Two months went by. Ben took up his measure of days and dealt with them as well as he was able, but the evenings, when the cabbages and the peas were carrying on their lives without him, when his washing up was done and the wind was stealing in the darkness around his home, then he staid to wonder how he was ever going to take tomorrow into his hands.

He always took it, however, and it was always coming.

"We'd have had a fire of an evening," he said two months after he had given her up.

There seemed a tremendous amount of irony in cutting firewood, to his simple mind.

A light footstep sounded behind him. He started, and there dawned an astounded expression, then a rapturous glow on his face.

"Bessie!" he exclaimed. "Bessie!"

She tried to smile, but her face was white and afraid, and her lips quivered.

"I've come—I've come to see you, Ben," she said and was so unconscious of her power over him that she trembled.

"I suppose—I suppose that you don't care about me yet, Ben. Do you? You don't care a bit, do you, Ben?"

"What do you want plaguing me for?" he burst out. "Can't you let me alone? Are you wanting me to lie over again?"

"I want the truth, Ben," she whispered.—London Telegraph.

Getting an Opening.

A man had a story about a gu which he delivered himself of upon occasions.

At a dinner party one evening he writhed in his chair for over an hour, waiting for a chance to introduce his story, but no opportunity presented itself. Finally he slipped a coin into the hand of a waiter and whispered:

"When you leave the room again, slam the door."

The waiter slammed the door as directed, and the man sprang to his feet with the exclamation:

"What's that noise—a gun?"

"Oh, no!" resumed his host. "It was only the door."

"Ah, I see! Well, speaking of guns reminds me of a little story," etc.—Liverpool Mercury.

SUGAR FROM MILK.

Five Thousand Pounds of Milk Make One Barrel of Sugar.

So much interest has been manifested in the recent attempt of Illinois parties to produce sugar from milk, says The Creamery Journal, that the few points on its manufacture which follow may serve to give some idea of the manufacture and use of the product. F. W. Patrick is the gentleman who is experimenting with it:

The Fox and Rock river valleys, in Illinois, already have a number of successful industries in which the milk product of the farmers' dairy district is prepared for a wider field. The condensing plants at Carpentersville, the Anglo-Swiss company at Dixon and the DeKalb farm, on which milk is especially prepared for the use of babies and invalids, are all doing a big business, and it is thought that the new venture at Marengo may meet similar success in creating a demand for its product. So far little is known as to what this demand will be, the sugar being subject to use for medical purposes only. The working product is collected from 15 counties in the neighborhood of Marengo. The milk is separated from the cream, which is utilized in making butter. On the skimmilk curd is allowed to form until it is hard enough to handle. Then it is put through a drying process and afterward ground as fine as ordinary cornmeal. This product is sent to Ohio, where it receives treatment, reducing it to a liquid used for glazing paper.

The sugar product comes from the whey left in the vats after the curd is removed. It is forced into large boilers, where it is allowed to boil for some time, after which it is run into evaporating pans, where the boiling continues until a thick sirup is left. After standing a certain length of time it is again boiled, when the sugar forms. The sugar is worked over until it is thoroughly drained, after which it is packed in barrels for the refinery. It now resembles the ordinary coarse brown sugar of commerce. The process of refining is a well guarded secret, known to Mr. Patrick and one other man. When the product emerges from the refinery, it is snowy white It is said that there are fewer than a dozen men in the United States who are in the secret of refining milk sugar. The new factory has just been completed. It requires 5,000 pounds of milk to procure one barrel of sugar. This sugar sells for 40 cents per pound. There are waste substances, which are utilized by farmers in feeding stock.

Food as Affecting Churnability.

After years of close observation I am convinced that it does make a great difference as to the amount of cream that will rise and the time required for it to rise and also as to time required to churn butter from the cream and the amount of butter obtained if the cows are properly fed. The butter fat probably will be found in the skimmilk, but it does not alter the fact that the kind of feed used has an influence not only on the amount of milk, but in the amount of butter obtained from any given quantity of milk when handled in the ordinary way—set, skimmed and churned. I believe that a large majority of the women who have given close attention to the dairy department of the farm will corroborate my statement. I would not only advise the feeding of those feeds that will increase the flow, but that will also increase the amount of butter obtained.—A. R. Merrill in Breeder's Gazette.

Co-operative Dairies In Belgium.

From Brussels Consul Roosevelt reports the contemplated formation of a co-operative association of milk dealers and cheesemakers. It is proposed to confide the direction of the cheese dairies to women suitably educated for the work. Besides technical instruction, a knowledge of bookkeeping and a competent understanding of dairy work will be required of applicants. Annexed to the admirably equipped government agricultural and industrial school at Overysche is a cheese dairy school, where complete instruction is given in cheesemaking.

Most women approach the critical period of motherhood for the first time with a sense of dread and foreboding lest the ruthless hand of death should snatch them away and leave the expectant little darling motherless. But no woman who fortifies herself with the strengthening power of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription need feel one instant's misgiving about either herself or the prospective little one.

This matchless "Prescription" will give her exactly the kind of healthy vitality she needs and at the time she needs it most. It will give elastic endurance to the entire delicate organism involved in motherhood. It will make the coming of baby absolutly free from danger and nearly free from pain.

It will insure the baby's start in life by imparting, through its influence upon the mother, that sturdy infantile vigor which gladdens a mother's heart. It is the only medicine which can be implicitly relied upon for this purpose; and the only remedy expressly designed by an educated, experienced physician to give perfect health and strength to the delicate, special organism of women.

Mr. Joseph Ramsey, of Williams, Colleton Co., S. C., writes: "I have been using your medicines for some time and am happy to say that they have done all that you claim for them. I think they have no equal in the world. I would advise all women while in a delicate state to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It shortens the time of birth and makes the labor easier. My wife is the mother of five children and she suffered almost death in the birth of them until this last one; the time of birth was short, and labor easy, from the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser used to sell for $1.50, now it is free. It tells all about the home-treatment of ordinary diseases. Several chapters are devoted to the diseases of women. For a paper-covered copy send 21 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of mailing only, to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. Cloth binding, 31 stamps. "Favorite Prescription" can be obtained in any good medicine store.

To Our New Readers.

By the transfer of the subscription books of the News to the INDEX-TRIBUNE's books quite a number of new readers have been added to our list of subscribers. To these we would say that we will endeavor to the utmost of our ability to give them a live, newsy, progressive local newspaper and trust that the major portion of them will become permanent patrons, and assure them that it will be our aim to give them their money's worth.

This paper is not owned or controlled by a faction, but always has been and always will be free and untrammeled in its expressions on matters of public import, and will always be found advocating the rights of the people as a whole as against the selfish purposes of the few.

In following out this policy the past fourteen years the INDEX-TRIBUNE has incurred the displeasure of a few who could not control its columns for the purpose of self-gain or revenge. There are others who envy its great success and influence. On the other hand the INDEX-TRIBUNE has made hundreds of staunch, tried and true friends in the Sonoma Valley by its independent and fearless course in advocating the advancement of this town and valley and championing the rights of its people.

To the people of Sonoma Valley, and particularly to those whose names have recently been added to our subscription list, we would say, that the INDEX-TRIBUNE will strive by working for the advancement of the interests of both town and valley to merit their confidence and esteem.

A Fierce Norther.

THE norther which prevailed in this valley last Tuesday and Wednesday dried up everything with amazing rapidity and left very little moisture in the ground. The desiccating wind spent its force at an early hour Thursday morning. As these winds are always followed in this valley by rain little or no damage will result. The past five or six days have been the warmest ever experienced in Sonoma county in the month of January.

AN exchange says that in the beginning God created the heavens and the earth; then he made the editor, the liberal advertiser and the prompt paying subscriber and it was good. The next day a blizzard set in, and he created the man who didn't believe in advertising and another who didn't take his home paper, then rested. Then the devil got into the moulding room, and he created the fellow who takes a paper for years and then fails to pay for it. After completing the sorry job, and having a few lumps left, he made the excuse for a man who settles his subscription by instructing the postmaster to mark his paper refused.

THE deadlock in the Legislature at Sacramento still continues. Thirty-two ballots have already been taken. Grant still holds his own and is in the lead. His supporters caucused last Tuesday and decided to stand by him to the end. Burns is evidently out of the fight and when there is a break from him something is going to drop.

THE directors of the Cloverdale Citrus Fair Association held a meeting at Cloverdale Monday for the purpose of arranging excursion rates for the Fair which opens in that city next month. Sonoma Valley will be represented at the Fair with a prize-winning display of oranges, lemons and limes.

EX GOVERNOR PACHECO died at his home in Oakland Monday. He was born in Santa Barbara in 1831. He had held many positions of public trust. He was a Judge, Senator, Assemblyman, State Treasurer, Governor, Congressman and Minister to Mexico by turns.

Sonoma Valley's Reclaimed Lands.

THE reclaimed marsh lands borderding on Sonoma and Petaluma creeks and San Pablo Bay, amounting to several thousand acres, have been proven year in and year out to be never-failing producers of immense hay and grain crops, it mattered not whether the season be a dry or wet one. It has also been demonstrated that the longer these reclaimed marsh lands have been cultivated the more mellow and rich becomes the soil. In other words the nutritive qualities of these reclaimed lands is inexhaustible and the more they are tilled the better the crop.

At the present time there are between 100,000 and 200,000 acres of unreclaimed marsh or overflowed land lying between Petaluma creek on the one side and Napa creek on the other that ought to be leveed and brought under cultivation by their owners. Should this be done Sonoma Valley would undoubtely become one of the richest agricultural and pastoral sections of California.

With the introduction of new dredging devices the cost of leveeing these lands the past year has been reduced one-half in both time and money. This being the case the owners of these lands ought to join together and build an entire new dredging plant of the very latest design with a view to reclaim all our marsh lands and protect forever those that were inundated at Tubbs' Island and Reclamation by the recent storm.

THE reduction in wine freight by rail, as announced by the Southern Pacific, from shipping points in this State to New York and New Orleans, via Sunset Route, has been reduced from 60 cents to 45 cents per 100 pounds. This rate, of course, is for wine in wood. In November the Southern Pacific advanced its rate 6 cents per gallon, which is the same as 60 cents per 100 pounds. The present reduced rate is about 4½ cents a gallon.

Money For Winemakers.

The members of the California Winemakers' Corporation are beginning to experience the beneficial effects of the arrangement made by their organization with the new combination of merchants known as the Associated Dealers, consisting of the California Wine Association, the Italian-Swiss Agricultural Colony, C. Shilling & Co. and the Gundlach-Bundschu Company, says the Press-Democrat. The first distribution to the members of the corporation on the 1897 vintage has just been ordered. It consists of two cents a gallon, or $110,000, to be divided among 245 shareholders. The corporation has on hand 15,000,000 gallons of dry wine of the vintages of 1896, 1897 and 1898, which it is expected will net its members $1,500,000 within the next ten months, or at the rate of $150,000 a month.

Installation.

The following officers of Sonoma Lodge No. 28, I. O. O. F., were installed last Saturday evening by District Deputy Grand Master Wm. Shaw of Santa Rosa: J. B. Small, N. G.; J. G. Marcy, V. G.; Jas. Spain's Sunken Ships Floated.

Perhaps the greatest mechanical feat of the century has been the raising of some of the Spanish warships which were apparently shot to pieces at Santiago. It seemed as though it was utterly impossible to float them because of the terrible damage inflicted by our guns, but the task has been accomplished nevertheless. Diseases of the blood, stomach, liver and kidneys frequently wreck the health in a similar manner, so that there appears to be no chance of recovery. But when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are taken, the disordered system is speedily restored to its old time vigor and tone. This has been the result times without number. The Bitters will regulate the liver, bowels and digestive functions, purify the blood, and will fill the veins with the rich, red life fluid. You can buy this remedy in any drug store, and under no circumstances should you accept anything said to be just as good.

Lady: "Are these eggs really fresh?" Geo. Goodhue: "Madam if you will kindly step to the telephone and call up our farm, you can hear the hens that laid those eggs still cackling."

In Olden Times

People overlooked the importance of permanently beneficial effects and were satisfied with transient action; but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs will permanently overcome habitual constipation, well-informed people will not buy other laxatives, which act for a time, but finally injure the system. Buy the genuine made by the California Fig Syrup Co.

Gave Up Hope

Feared Her Little Boy Could Not Recover

But Hood's Sarsaparilla Made Him Well and Strong.

"My little boy was taken with inflammatory rheumatism when he was two years old. Some one had to sit up with him every night. At one time we thought he could not live from day to day. He had a heart trouble caused by the rheumatism. I had about given up all hope of his recovery, but I got a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Before he had taken half the contents he began to improve. He kept on gaining and now he is well and strong and goes to school every day. I owe his life to Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. P. S. LOCKRIDGE, 1328 West Second Street, Los Angeles, Cal.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

Singular Happening.

On Friday evening of last week L. Roquie of Vineburg, near this place, filled a large stone bottle full of water and corking it tight placed it in the kitchen stove oven to heat. The bottle was to be used in warming the feet of his wife who was ill in bed. Shortly after placing the bottle in the stove a terrific explosion took place, which nearly shook the house from its foundation. Mr. Roquie, who was in another part of the house, hastened to the kitchen to discover the cause of the explosion when he was astonished to discover that the bottle had bursted, and blown the stove to atoms, portions of which had been forced clear through the roof. The interior of the kitchen was strewn with debris and looked as though it had passed through a cyclone. It was fortunate that no one was in the kitchen at the time as the force of the explosion was sufficient to have blown one into eternity.

Death of a Former Resident of Schellville.

R. A. Stratton, who resided at Schellville several years ago but who subsequently removed to Clyde, N. Y., died at the home of his mother in that city on Thursday, December 22d. The Clyde Times in making mention of the death of Mr. Stratton says: "The funeral of Theron A. Stratton, who died last Thursday, was held from the residence of Mrs. S. A. Stratton last Saturday at 2 P. M., Rev. V. N. Yergin of the Presbyterian church officiating. The interment was made in Maple Grove cemetery. Mr. Stratton was 51 years of age, and had been in failing health for about two years. He resided in Galen until 1886, when he went to Oakdale, Neb., and engaged in business. After two years he removed to San Francisco, where he remained four years and later he went into business at Schellville, Sonoma county, Cal. At this time failing health compelled him to give up business and after a year's stay in San Francisco he came east to his mother's home. He was twice married, the second time at Oakdale, Neb., and his wife and one daughter, Hattie, survive him."

Tubbs' Island and Reclamation.

The breaks in the levee on Tubbs' Island and Reclamation have been repaired and both are now free from water. It transpired after the water had run off the overflowed land that the damage to the young grain was not near so great as was at first apprehended. In some of the low places the grain was drowned out, but for the most part the hay crop of the Tubbs, Rose and other ranches down that way will be up to the average of former years.

The remains were shipped to San Francisco yesterday morning for interment in one of the cemteries of that city.

Earnings of County Officials.

The question has often been asked, "what are the net earnings of the various officials of Sonoma county?" At the recent session of the Grand Jury Arthur S. Luce, who experted the books of the county officials for that body, figured out the net earnings of county officers from October 1, 1897, to October 1, 1898, as follows:

Clerk, $2000; Sheriff, $5136.45; Auditor and Recorder, $2872.50; Assessor, $5673.85; Treasurer, $2000; District Attorney, $2400; Deputy District Attorney, $1500; Superintendent of Schools, $2000; Surveyor, $1500; Coroner and Public Administrator, $864.75. In the case of the Sheriff no allowance is made for traveling expenses and in the case of the Assessor the only items of expense allowed by Mr. Luce is for one deputy. Added to this he had the expense of all his deputies in assessing the property of the county.

AFTER TIBURON FOR A TERMINUS.

The Best Deep Water Railway Point in the State.

THE VANDERBILTS OR SOUTHERN PACIFIC BELIEVED TO BE NEGOTIATING FOR IT.

Preparations are said to be afoot for the transfer to a big transcontinental railway company of the San Francisco and North Pacific Railroad, which runs from Ukiah southward to Point Tiburon and thence has ferry connections across the bay to San Francisco, says the Chronicle. The prospective purchasers are believed to be either the Vanderbilts, that they may secure advantageous terminal facilities for their contemplated extensions to this Coast, or the Southern Pacific, that it may shut off the prospective rival from one of the best remaining bay terminal points for a great railroad.

This information comes in much the same way that the facts of the prospective transfer of the Valley Road to the Santa Fe Company came some time before the officials concerned in the deal would admit that such a sale were even a possibility. The officers of the San Francisco and North Pacific Railroad and those of the Southern now deny that they know of any contemplated change in the ownership of the little coast road that ends at Tiburon. President Foster laughs and says that the Southern Pacific does not want the road. Beyond that he will only laugh and say "There is nothing in it."

But the very location of the San Francisco and North Pacific Railroad makes it a valuable piece of property to any line seeking to reach San Francisco from the East. The Pacific Coast is conceded to be the remaining field for railroad building. The best natural terminal facilities on the Oakland side of the bay are already in the possession of the Southern Pacific, which has constructed long piers at great expense, and the Santa Fe, which has secured with the Valley Road the fine deep-water terminal at Point Richmond. The bay shore and its natural approaches on the east side are pretty well occupied by these two big competing transcontinental lines, and the Southern Pacific owns the road into Oakland from Niles and into San Francisco from San Jose, so that the Central Pacific, which runs through Niles from Sacramento and terminates at San Jose, has no approach to a favorable terminal point on the east side of the bay.

New Drawbridge.

The frame for a new drawbridge to take the place of the old structure which crosses Sonoma Creek near McGill's station, is being put together at the machine shops of the California Northwestern Railway at Tiburon. The new bridge, which will be an improvement on the old one, will be on the ground and ready to set up in a week or two.

SONOMA COUNTY HAPPENINGS.

Accidents and Incidents—Other Matters of Note.

An insane man named Kelley was captured one day last week in Los Gullicos Valley.

An immense tank of wine burst in Schirmer's wine cellar, near Sebastopol, one day last week, and ten thousand gallons of wine went to waste.

Last week Grace Brothers of Santa Rosa shipped 500 boxes of dried apples to Hamburg, Germany, 606 boxes of dried apples to Kansas City, Mo., and 500 boxes of dried prunes to Portland, Maine. Grace Brothers have shipped an immense amount of dried fruit abroad and to the East during the past twelve months, and everywhere the Sonoma county article handled by them has been very much commended, says the Press Democrat.

Dr. F. E. Bower, who resides on the Noonan ranch, near the Hearn district school house, had a very close call on Sunday, says the Press Democrat. On Friday night one of the doctor's cows died from what he says was posion from a parsnip which had gone to seed, and which the cow ate. On Saturday afternoon Dr. Bower made a post mortem examination of the cows' body, and was himself poisoned by the gases from the cows' paunch, the lining of which, he says, was as black as ebony, the result of the poisons. He was deathly sick for many hours, and fears were entertained for his recovery. Finally he rallied, and was able to come to town Monday. Dr. Bower claims the parsnip after it has gone to seed the first year is as poisonous as strychnine. He congratulates himself on his lucky escape. The cow that died, Dr. Bower says, he refused an offer of sixty dollars for about three weeks ago.

The will of the late Demus Gale, who committed suicide near Petaluma a few weeks ago, was filed for probate last Monday by Attorney J. P. Rodgers. The will was made when he was sixty-eight years of age. The testator bequeaths to his wife all his personal estate, to be her's absolutely. For the term of her natural life he gives her the 142-acre place situated on the Petaluma and Washoe road, and to his sons, Milton and Wallace, he gives the portion of the tract they now occupy. All other real estate, after the death of his wife, in fee simple, is bequeathed to his daughters, Sophie McGrew, Lucy A. Mayfield, Alice Johnson and Mary Roberts. The testator names his wife and sons, Milton and Wallace, his executrix and executors respectively, to serve without bonds. The property consists of one tract of land in Petaluma township of 142 acres valued at $11,000; seven acres of land at Spring Hill, Tomales, valit $280; 150 acres in Analy township, valued at $6500; farming implements valued at $50, and cash in the Sonoma county bank, about $400.

TEXAS CATTLE FEVER.

Vicious Little Ticks, Which Cause the Fatal Disease.

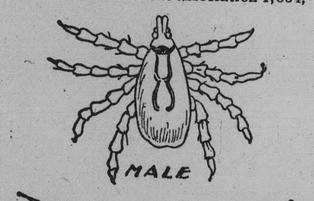
Texas fever is caused by an organism which lives within the red blood corpuscles and breaks them up. It is therefore simply a blood disease.

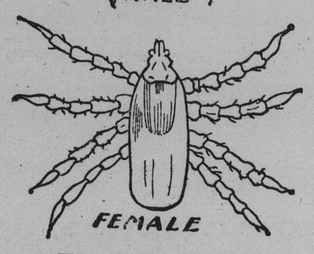
The symptoms of the disease, which usually appear anywhere from 20 to 90 days after exposure to infected soil, are, in their first stage, dullness, loss of appetite and a tendency to leave the herd and stand or lie down alone. A few days after these first symptoms appear the temperature rises from a normal of 101-103 degrees F. to 106-107 degrees F., and there is little or no change until death or recovery ensues. The higher the temperature the more fatal the end. Toward the end of the disease emaciation becomes more pronounced, and signs of delirium are observed in some cases. Death occurs most frequently in the night.

The tick, which causes most of the attacks, is a parasite of cattle in the southern part of the United States, attaching itself to the skin of animals and drawing the blood.

The eggs, laid on the ground after the female falls from an animal, begin to develop at once, and at the end of six weeks are ready to do their part in the spread of the scourge.

It is stated that the number of head of cattle in Texas is in the neighborhood of 8,000,000, which, taken at the low valuation of $15 per head, amounts to $120,000,000. The members of the Cattle Raisers' association of Texas, whose holdings are in the state, render for assessment to the association 1,654,-





TEXAS CATTLE FEVER TICKS.

992 head of cattle, of which number 784,893 are held to belong to members north of the quarantine line and 780,-599 head to members south of the line.

While this association numbers among its members a majority of the prosperous cattlemen of the state and shows that the cattle held by them are about equally divided north and south of the line, yet the membership roll holds nearly all of the names of the north Texas and Panhandle cattlemen, which leaves the inference that 6,000,-250 head, or nearly 80 per cent of the state's cattle, are in the hands of stockmen and farmers below the quarantine line. Taking 80 per cent of the assessed value, $96,000,000 in cattle values is affected by the line in Texas alone. Should the resolution offered by the association be adopted by the department of agriculture, it will boom the Fort Worth stockyards and allow for shipment of cattle from all points below the line after dipping. As the principal dipping baths for Texas are at Fort Worth, it stands to reason that the business of those yards will be greatly increased by the adoption of the regulations suggested.

A number of experiments were made last year at Fort Worth on dipping cattle in oils. The results were that many of these dips did not kill the ticks in one dipping, and sometimes not in two. Experiments were continued this year with dips in light oils, many of which were found inefficient. Oil emulsions which did not have an injurious effect on the cattle did not destroy 75 per cent of the ticks on them. A layer of paraffin upon the water was tried; but, while this destroyed ticks upon the body, the legs of the animals were not cleansed. It was decided after a number of tests to again try solid oil baths, and finally a lubricating oil, known as dynamo oil, from which the paraffin had been extracted, was found to be effective. The addition of 1½ per cent of sulphur to this oil increased its efficiency.

Western Sheep.

Montana and Wyoming sheep have been moving very slowly. The high price asked for lambs has held many buyers back, but the movement has thus far been fairly good. Kansas and Nebraska promise to take fully as many as last year, and Missouri and Iowa are doubling last year's record. Colorado will not take to exceed 60 per cent of the number fed last year, because of the high prices asked. The demand thus far in New Mexico and Colorado has been remarkably active, but trades have hardly been as numerous as a year ago, though at an advance over last year's figures of fully 25 cents per head.
